Few Surprises in Alberta Program

Road Plan Unveiled

EDMONTON (UPI) — The Alberta legislature was opened yesterday with the traditional Speech from the Throne which contained few surprises.

Major items in the address by Lieutenant-Governor J. J. Bowlen included the announcement of plans to initiate Alberta's five-year development program and details of the largest highway building scheme in the province's history.

Also planned is a brand new provincial park embracing 2,100 square miles north of Jasper National Park. The controversial issues of education and gas administration policies received minor mention in speech with the promise of amendments to the Oil and Gas Conservation Act and the Public Utility Act, and increased financial assistance to students.

Nova Scotia Tories Blistered

HALIFAX (UPI)—Opposition Leader Henry D. Hicks led off the Throne Speech debate Thursday in the Nova Scotia Legislature with a scathing two-hour attack on the Conservative administration.

He ended his address with a want of confidence motion.

Hicks attacked the efforts of the Conservatives in almost every field of government. He cited the alleged ineffectiveness of the American firm of Gerome Barnum Associates, the American management efficiency firm hired by the Stanfield government after they went into office in 1956.

But the heavy blows of the opposition leader's address came on the government's stand on the recent coal crisis. He questioned the premier's "hesitancy" on using the Dominion Coal Board as a marketing agent and said that in the last two years production of coal has fallen 1,200,000 tons.

Hit the Road School Tells Young Writer

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP)—Robert Fiander, a fourth-year arts student at Acadia University, said Thursday he has been suspended and told to leave town within 24 hours.

The order came from university president Watson Kirkconnell after an article by Fiander appeared in the Acadia Athenaeum, a weekly student newspaper.

The editor, Donald Angus of Bridgetown, N.S., has been asked to resign by a student committee.

Fiander, of North Sydney, N.S., said his article was written as a religious allegory. It referred to a woman named Mary and concluded with a poem on Christ's crucifixion. He said the article was "pro-religious."

Fiander said Dr. Kirkconnell called the article "foul blasphemy."

YUKON STREAM

The Porcupine River in the Yukon was discovered in 1842 by John Bell, a Hudson's Bay Company trader.

EDWARD ALLAYN NYE

Cuba Plotter 'Confesses'

HAVANA (UPI) — Local newspapers yesterday quoted a police statement saying Edward Allayn Nye, former U.S. Navy flier, "confessed" he came to Cuba to assassinate rebel leader Fidel Castro under a deal with ousted dictator Fulgencio Batista. Nye's whereabouts are being kept secret by revolutionary police and army authorities.

Share the Food

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer looked at the world Wednesday, found one half hungry and the other half staggering under gigantic food surpluses.

Why, he asked the Ontario Agricultural Council, doesn't the West distribute its surpluses among the impoverished nations?

In a speech to the council's annual meeting, he said production surpluses are one of the chief problems facing farmers. Abroad, he saw an economic factor in the challenge of communism.

"Surely in common Christian charity we should begin to think seriously about the possibility, the advisability, the practicality of distributing our surplus products among those people who do not have enough to eat.

"You can't justify our economic life to a man who is hungry. You feed a man before you talk to him."

ALOHA !
by "Kahanamoko" Humber

Aloha . . . farewell . . . & so-long . . . too, With some swaying palms . . . we've a rendez-vous. Our bags are packed, mine a "Flite-Grip," Altho we're going on a great white ship. "She's" so excited . . . she can't get to sleep, Dreaming of life . . . out there on the deep. And of what she'll wear, strolling on deck, If we EVER make it . . . she'll be a wreck. She even went down & had a shampoo, Plus a tropical kind of a "Lola" hair-do. And she's got a beach coat, mit matching bag, But still thinks she hasn't a rag. I keep sayin' . . . I'll just take my "Dacks," And maybe my washable faded slacks. And a couple of shirts, my razor & stuff, They say in the folder, "that's enuff." It's a British Ship that is playing host, And the lines in their folder I love the most, ". . . and we know you'll enjoy, even mithers, trouncing your opponent, in rousing slithers." We first go to Frisco, so we'll write from there, Or maybe while loafing out in a deck chair. There'll be oceans of time, out there on the blue, So, if I don't hug the rail, I'll write to YOU, Aloha then . . . but while I'm away loose, Please come & buy from Peg . . . "Barley" & Bruce, Or I won't get paid, & can't stay, don't you see, At "Halikalani" . . . on The Beach at Wai-ki-ki.
